Fart Wars: May the Farts Be With You - A Hilarious Book ...

Over 150 years ago a group of anonymous artists created a 34-ft long scroll titled He-Gassen (屁合戦), literally: "Fart Battle." The scroll, created during the Edo Period (probably around 1846) in Japan, consists of roughly 15 different scenes depicting people directing their farts at other people or objects.

150 years ago, Japan released the infamous "Fart Battle ...

The He-gassen scroll is a long series of paintings executed in a traditional Japanese style that depicts an epic battle between combatants — whose primary weapon seems to be flatulence. In fact, He-gassen translates as "fart battle," "fart war," or "farting competition," and that perfectly describes what's depicted in the scroll.
