ISO 13528:2015 provides detailed descriptions of statistical methods for proficiency testing providers to use to design proficiency testing schemes and to analyse the data obtained from those schemes. It provides recommendations on the interpretation of proficiency testing data by participants in such schemes and by accreditation bodies.

ISO 13528 provides support for the implementation of ISO/IEC 17043 particularly, on the requirements for the statistical design, validation of proficiency test items, review of results, and reporting summary statistics. Annex B of ISO/IEC 17043:2010 briefly describes the general statistical methods that are used in proficiency testing schemes.

The main scope of the standards ISO/IEC 17043 and ISO 13528 is to assure the reliability of the assessments realised with inter laboratory comparisons. In particular, the issues of stability and homogeneity of samples, adequacy of the statistic methods are widely developed.

These requirements are also described in three different international standards (see ISO 5725-2, ISO Guide 35 and ISO 13528 for proficiency tests). Each participating laboratory may well know the difference between the test results it produces and the reference value ("the value which was to be found").

Laboratory results were rated using z , z' and ζ scores in accordance with ISO 13528, 2015. The standard deviation for proficiency assessment, σ_{pt} , was set to 20 % of the respective assigned value, for all the four studied oligomers, based on the perception of experts. A total of 36 participants from 26 countries have registered to the exercise.
