log.count[] and logrt.count[] checks are stopped if maxdelay = 0 (default). Behaviour is similar to log[] and logrt[] items as described above. Note that this can affect log.count[] and logrt.count[] results: for example, one check counts 100 matching lines in a log file, but as there are no free slots in the buffer the check is stopped. When communication is restored the agent counts the same 100 matching lines and also 70 new matching lines.
