Apprehensive behavior (anxiety) stresses the body. A body that's under stress can exhibit symptoms of stress. Experiencing pain due to muscle tension and random body aches and pains is a common symptom of anxiety-caused stress. So much so that 75 to 80 percent of anxious personalities report experiencing pain due to their anxiety issues.

Psychological Stress Can Make Pain Worse - anxietycentre.com

The most common causes of muscle pain are tension, stress, overuse and minor injuries. This type of pain is usually localized, affecting just a few muscles or a small part of your body. Systemic muscle pain — pain throughout your whole body — is more often the result of an infection, an illness or a side effect of a medication.
